

DEPARTMENT OF GENDER STUDIES

graduate studies

 What is gender?  What are its relationships with sexuality?  How and why do they matter in personal, social and political ways?  How does studying context beyond the modern West change our understanding of gender?  How can gender help us understand the development of nationalism in both Western and non-Western regions?  How do gender and sexuality become instrument in national and transnational, social and political movements?  How can we think critically both

EARN A DEGREE ACCREDITED IN AUSTRIA AND THE U.S.

MA in Gender Studies / 1 YEAR / This intensive program is for students who have a four-year bachelor's degree and some grounding in gender studies or a related field. The program will introduce you to the major theoretical and methodological approaches to the field from a range of disciplines, including history, sociology, international relations, legal studies and literature, leading to original research on your chosen topic. → gender.ceu.edu/1-year-ma

MA in Critical Gender Studies / 2 YEARS / This program is designed for applicants with a three-year bachelor's degree or with limited background in gender studies. You can choose from two tracks: the research track with an extended research component or the applied track with focused training in critical policy studies and an internship. → gender.ceu.edu/2-year-masters-degree-critical-gender-studies

MA in Gender Studies (GEMMA) / 2 YEARS / The first Erasmus Mundus Master's Degree in Women's and Gender Studies, GEMMA is offered by a consortium of seven prestigious institutions and co-funded by the Horizon 2020 Framework Programme of the EU. PhD in Comparative Gender Studies / This program focuses on critical, comparative, theoretical and empirical research in the field of gender studies. It will train you to apply traditional research methods (e.g. archival research, textual analysis, statistics, participant observation etc.), while exploring new territories. You will benefit from careful supervision, conference and research grants, as well as teaching opportunities. → gender.ceu.edu/phd-program

"My time as an MA student in the Gender Studies Department opened my eyes to how interdisciplinary, far-reaching, and transformative gender studies can be. Each course designed by our professors offers indispensable tools for knowledge production: from theory to research methods, classes become spaces for students to expand their knowledge. Students, in turn, are from various parts of the world, bringing distinct perspectives and allowing for thoughtful and unique discussions to happen. As a Ph.D. candidate in the same department, I see how I have received a strong and critical foundation that helps me in my research about the migration experiences of three black women authors: Una Marson, Claudia Jones, and Audre Lorde.."
