Experimental Humanities Collaborative Network

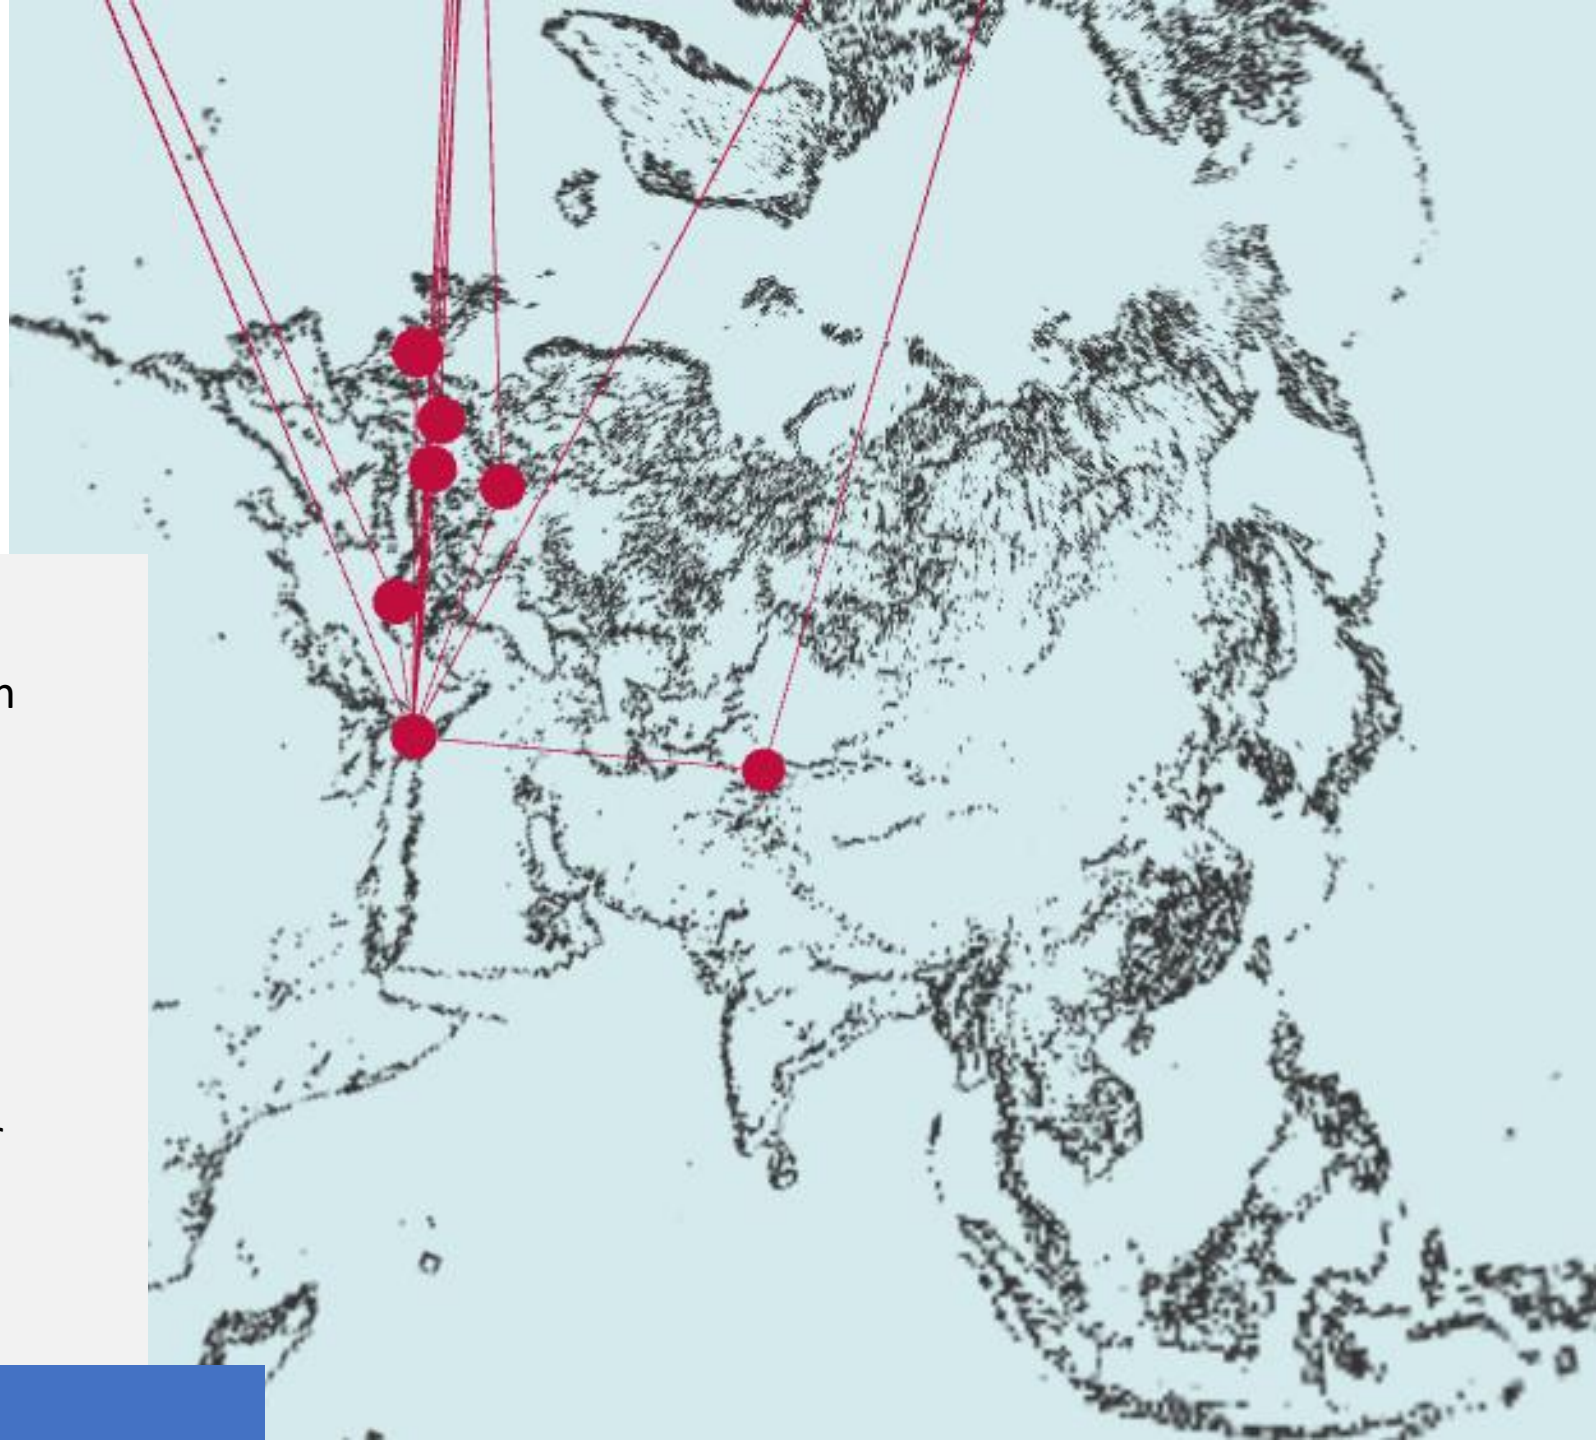

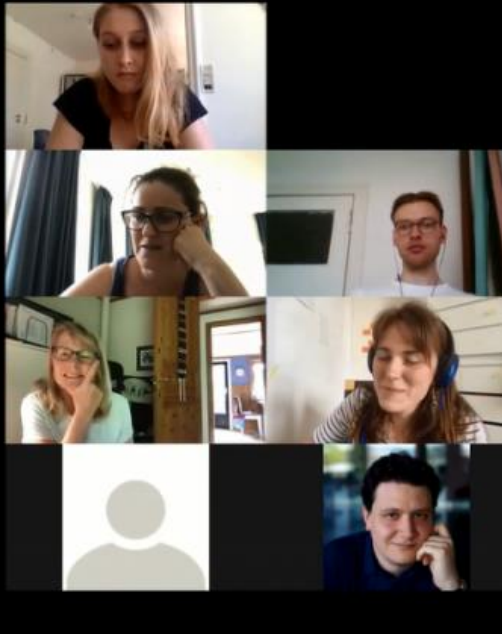

The Experimental Humanities Collaborative Network is a global network rethinking the humanities in the light of changing technologies, our increasingly connected planet, the ongoing ecological crisis, and the need to create more inclusive institutions.

Experimental Humanities Collaborative Network (EHCN) supports:

- innovative and interdisciplinary research at the intersection of the arts, technology, and the humanities;
- pedagogy that emphasizes skills-based learning with a range of technologies
- critical reflection, and social justice;
- digital and face-to-face public projects that promote civic engagement in order to imagine more just technological realities.

Restaging Memories of Dissent: #ENDSARS2020 in Retrospect

What We Are Looking For

We are looking for creative representations of #ENDSARS2020 experiences. Your creative representation can be a personal reflection or based on collectively shared perceptions. Your work can be presented as a short story reading, a performed speech, spoken poetry, narrative monologue, dance video, photo(s), graphic artwork, or even a well articulated rant.

A honorarium of ₦25,000 will be awarded for every successful submission.

Accepted Medium & Format

- Visual works - High Resolution JPEG files
- Written works like short stories, poems, essays, etc. are to be read out loud and clear, recorded as a video and submitted as .mp4 or .wav files
- Dance and drama performances should also be recorded and sent as video
- Only one video of not more than 3 minutes should be submitted per person or group.

Eligibility and Deadline

- Submissions are open to Nigerian residents, ages 16 to 30.
- Deadline: June 13, 2021

Submissions should be made via email to tcconversation@gmail.com

Some of the previous CEU projects supported by the EHCN:

Student-led Initiatives (up to 500 USD)

- Projects and initiatives focused on the intersection of the arts, sciences, and humanities
- Projects might strive to bring local concerns, narratives, and resources to a global stage through new media technologies including podcasts, websites, social media, and so forth
- Funds may be used for activities like starting student-groups interested in media or technology, interdisciplinary art projects, reading groups, or digital student publications/content creation.
- Students applying for this grant must identify a faculty member at CEU who can help them develop the project and mentor them throughout its execution.
- Eligibility: CEU students

Community-facing Events (up to 1000 USD)

- Events centered on media, technology, and the humanities, tailored to the opportunities and circumstances at CEU's locale and meaningfully involving students.
- These may include film screenings, art exhibitions, and technical demonstrations; relevant speakers, exhibitions, or performances open to the public; and more.
- Funds may be used for material costs, food, rental space, publicity, special hardware and software needs, licensing or other streaming costs or speaker fees.
- Applicants may apply alone or in collaboration with one another.
- All events must enrich the experimental humanities perspectives of the CEU community and be open to the public.
- Eligibility: CEU faculty/staff/students

Skills-based Workshops (up to 1500 USD)

- Practice-rich training modules that support the participants' curriculum development, collaborative research, and/or community-engaged projects.
- These might include workshops like Wikipedia editing in English or other languages, building websites, podcasting and sound editing, developing inclusive or interdisciplinary syllabi, creating digital and analog maps, writing interactive narratives, building virtual and augmented reality experiences, taking oral histories, and more.
- Workshops may be online or engaged in-person.
- Funds may be used for material costs, food, publicity, licensing or other streaming costs, special hardware and software needs, or expert fees.
- Eligibility: CEU faculty/staff/students

Student Research and Professional Opportunities (up to 1000 USD)

- Research grants:

CEU students can receive a research grant to carry out research related to experimental humanities.

- Professional Opportunities at other OSUN partner institutions:

CEU students can receive a travel grant to visit another OSUN partner institution to attend projects, courses or trainings connected to experimental humanities. Eligibility: CEU students
